

ProQuest Central

ProQuest includes an enormous amount of recent material, but has less of a scholarly/academic focus than some of the databases. It contains bibliographic descriptions, abstracts, and lots of full text articles on such topics as business, economics, education, health, industrial relations, management, public policy, religion, and statistics.

Peer reviewed publications are journals that require the articles to be evaluated by a panel of experts before they are published.

The asterisk will give variant endings of the word eg: Indonesia, Indonesian, Indonesia's etc

You will find that some articles are available in full-text, while others have only an abstract or citation.

Some records will only have a citation or abstract. You will need to note the citation details and then search the ANU Library Catalogue for the journal title to see if the library holds the volume and issue you require.

When a full-text article is available you may have the choice of viewing it in HTML or PDF format.
